Natural Wine: An introduction to organic and biodynamic wines made naturally By Isabelle Legeron

Wine-making has become ever-more unnatural, from the use of blanket crop-spraying in vineyards, to the over-use of sulfites, but finally someone is doing something about it. Isabelle Legeron MW is leading the campaign for natural wine – wine made as nature intended. There is no official description of natural wine, but a rough definition is that it is made from grapes that are farmed organically or biodynamically and harvested manually, and that the wine should ideally be made without adding or removing anything during the vinification process. It is basically good old-fashioned grape juice fermented into wine, just as nature intended. Isabelle is a crusader for the natural wine movement: she has her own show on the Travel Channel, organizes a hugely successful annual natural wine festival (RAW), and acts as adviser to several leading restaurants. Just as the craft beer movement has taken off across the globe, the demand for natural wine is growing and will continue to do so.

Editorial Review

Review

"What Isabelle Legeron has put together here is an encouraging guide for anyone wishing to delve into the world of natural wines." --Wines & Spirits magazine

"Legeron gives both a personal and professional perspective on what some consider the most pure of winemaking styles in her new book Natural Wine, which excels in explaining the movement without employing the sanctimonious tone often associated with the subject.

The self-proclaimed Crazy French Woman uses real-world examples to illustrate her passion for the style while demystifying the ethos and process involved in creating the wine." --The Santa Barbara Independent

"Legeron's tome stimulates spirited conversation." --The Boston Globe
